The second "Reading Marathon" organized by the social communication major at UPS last Friday, January 16th was a great success. The attitude for the event was that a good book is an adventure for your soul.

For twelve hours, professors, students, poets, politicians, writers, and journalists read small parts of their cultural adventures. It was an exciting experience that gathered hundreds of national and international authors.

Katiuska Flores, Social Communication Director, said that due to the event's success they will definitely have a third edition and that they are also planning new events that will foster reading.
